The 1951 Seniors of the Kelloggsville High School
Grand Rapids, Michigan

FOREWORD

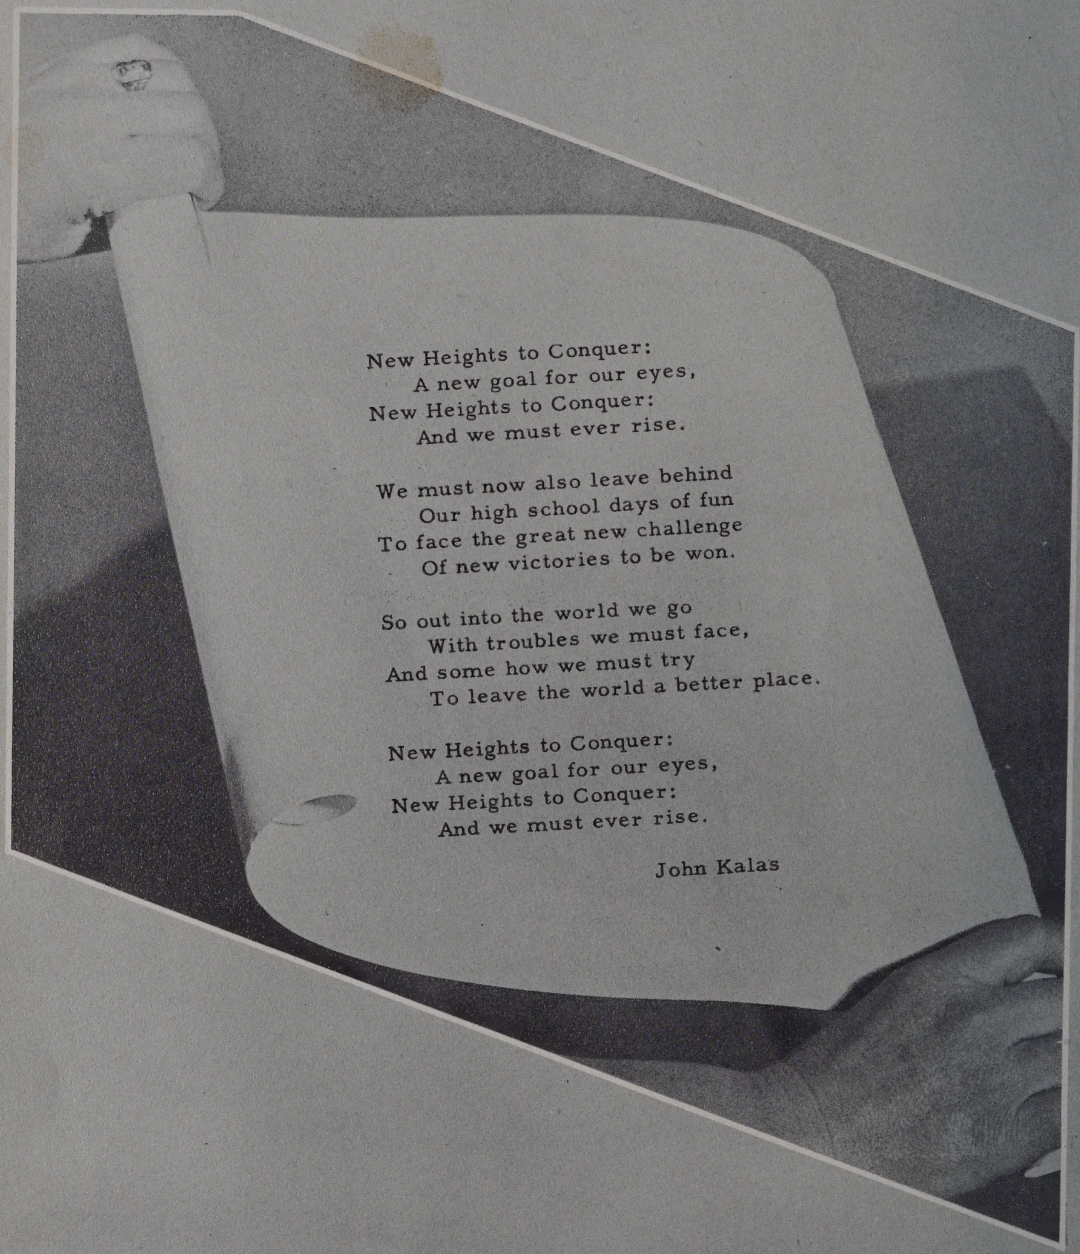
We, the senior Class of 1951, publish this annual to help us recapture the memories of joy and happiness which we have found as we turned each page in our book of learning.

We wish this book to express the prevading spirit of the school and to keep the memories that will be an inspiration to those of later years.

We, the graduating class, now leave with knowledge and ability, but we have many "New Heights to Conquer" in our waiting world of trials and successes.

DEDICATION

For the sympathetic and kindly advice you have given us; for your patience and willingness to help us in our problems; for the unselfish devotion of your time; for your guidance and inspiration; the class of 1951 wishes to express its sincere gratitude and appreciation to our teacher and friend, Mrs. Martin.



New Heights to Conquer:
A new goal for our eyes,
New Heights to Conquer:
And we must ever rise.

We must now also leave behind
Our high school days of fun
To face the great new challenge
Of new victories to be won.

So out into the world we go
With troubles we must face,
And some how we must try
To leave the world a better place.

New Heights to Conquer:
A new goal for our eyes,
New Heights to Conquer:
And we must ever rise.

CLASS HISTORY

Once upon a time there were thirty-one little gremlins who went into the enchanted world of kindergarten. Through the years these thirty-one orginal gremlins were doubled in numbers by addition and subtraction.

During the first years these little gremlins were made famous with their radio programs and brave deeds while serving on safety squad. Then one day in the fiscal year of 1946 a great event occured. These little gremlins moved from the small castle to the great castle with the older and wiser gremlins. But now the little gremlins had to work very hard!

In the eighth year they had paddle pop sales, and the next year there were over a hundred gremlins to carry on the paper drives. By the tenth year the work became more and more pressing with box socials and the Christmas sales. Then the next year it was skating parties and the great prom, the "Moonlight Mingle."

Finally the great year arrived-62 gremlins were to be graduated. The calendars, the dances, and the annual had to be put on schedule, and with the help of their three fairy-god-mothers they succeeded. At the end of this time, they were rewarded with a trip and their diplomas. All this work done successfully, they went out into the world much wiser gremlins.

FUTURE TENSE

As I sit here at the desk of the Bowers Publishing Company with a manuscript before me, my mind wanders back twenty years to the good old days of "51." A picture that grows in my mind's eye as I read this manuscript by Don Phillips is the story of my Senior classmates as they are today. The manuscript begins as Terry Covert and Don Cronkright, two Home Acres Blabber reporters, are going to see our own little quadruplets: those famous ballet dancers, Connie Miller, Dorcas Miller, Delano Miller, and Marion Miller.

Say! Talking about famous people, you surely don't want to miss the grand opening of John Kalas's dance hall, "The Sugar Bowl Casino." He is having Dick Warn and his "rythmatic" orchestra for the initial week. As an added feature, he is presenting that ton-of-fun man himself--none other than David Kisner. Mr. Kalas has been quoted as saying that he is not capable of handling both the Midtown Theatre and the Sugar Bowl Casino. So as a last presentation at the Midtown, he will have four stars of Stage and Screen appear in person on October 21, 1971. These stars will include the "Man of Steel," Bill Kolarec; those two great lovers, Iva Jean Amick and George Grit; and last but not least, that great drummerman, Gene Wolf, will play several specialties.

As we turn back to the manuscript, Covert and Cronkright are gliding thru space at the rapid pace of 3500 miles per hour. They are heading for Madison Square Gardens where they expect to see four muscle-bound girls in a tag match. The girls are Joyce Graham, Barbara Wood, Pat Prinz, and Marilyn Garton. The minor bouts before the girls' match includes those world famous midget boxers, Bob Schriemer, Morris Handlogten, Norman Davis, and Jerry DeVos.

After seeing the eye-filling fight, the two reporters stop in at Lawrence Nichols' Cafe to get a bite to eat. The girl coming to wait on them is none other than Geraldine Van Houten. After ordering, eating, and paying the check of only $250, they decide to try to get a story on the thrilling trip made to the moon by Tom Hansel. There have been only five successful trips made to the moon and Tom has made three. The other two have been made by Lloyd Seeley and Richard Thurber. These three men intend to build a larger Rocketship for the three of them and to start a colony on the moon. Acting as the feminine administrators will be Anne Marie Brozovich, Jenny Dieterman, and Gloria Martinson.

As we turn to the next chapter of the manuscript, we see those two great scientists, Phyllis Cross and Jo Ann Loughner, in their office at the Atomic Research Company. These girls have made it possible to run a car on water and a small pill instead of gas. They have invented many other great things of benefit to the world, but now they are working on the greatest yet; they are striving to perfect an atomic powered machine that will actually drill a large hole through the earth for shortening the time it takes to get from one side to the other. All they have to get is the President's go-ahead sign, then they will start the project. Of course, the President is none other than LaVon Schuiling. Her advisors, Ronald Leys, Dick Ball, Eunice Neuman, and Margie Payne are all in favor of it. The Construction company in charge will be the Voorhees, Keller, and Stephens Company.

Turning to chapter three, we see that adventurous explorers of the Universe have been lost some where on Venus. Their names are Phyllis Homrich, Lorraine Bullock, and Arline Steffes. Sent to rescue these three women are two of the world's most adventurous rabbit hunters. Roger Smits and Jim Williamson. However, these two men got lost somewhere in the motor of the Rocketship, and so far they have not been found.

In the next chapter, the article tells all about the new Kelloggsville. One more room has been added and the lockers have been cleaned. The biggest change in the school is the faculty. Taking Mrs. Greenwald's and Mrs. Martin's places are Joanne Kuikstra and Lorraine Verolme. There has been a large change in the gymnasium thanks to our superintendent, Doris Brown, and to our wonderful and outstanding basketball coach, Deloris Smith. They have a brand new basketball Auditorium with the latest sports' equipment.

We don't know if Rex McBride is a little on the unprogressive side, or if he just likes to take American Government, but for some reason, he is still a senior at good "ole K. H. S."

Upon reading chapter five, we see those rootin'-tootin', cowgirls, Carol Boerena and Joyce Bigham riding bareback on their tame deer, celebrating. Why are they celebrating? Because it has just been voted unaminously by the countries of the World to have an international government.

The president of the World may be either Blanche Nichols or Duane Doxtator. Whom do you think would be the better? If they elect Duane, I wonder about the future of the organization. However, a constitution must still be written and Ann Kruisenga, Marion Burg, Phyllis Poeder, and Joyce Syswerda are expecting to work on it with the delegates from other countries.

Jackie Wilson, David House, and Bob Perkins are expected to work on the demolition of the Atom and Hydrogen bombs and all plans for them. Fighter planes, tanks, and ships are going to be destroyed and used for scrap metal. The people of the United World are free to go any where they please, as long as it is reasonable, and they have the money to pay for it. The President and the elected governors of the individual nations may choose their own helpers and advisors.

And as the author of Cinderella would say: "And they lived happily ever after."

CLASS WILL

We, the Senior Class of Kelloggsville High School, being of unsound mind, do hereby execute and declare this nonsense our LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT.

CHAPTER I

To the Seniors of "52" we leave you the lack of support of the Junior Class at your dances.
To the Juniors, we leave your girls to the Seniors.
To the Sophomores, we leave a new office in which to wait for Mr. Fry.
To the Freshmen, we leave our knack for dating the Senior boys.
To the Seventh and Eighth graders, we leave the halls with the laboratory odors and the twelve o'clock rush.

CHAPTER II

To Mr. Andersen, we leave a new supply of funny books--no comment necessary.
To Mr. Beattie, we donate a "Century"--for $2.
To Mr. Beld, we leave you--aren't you glad to get rid of us?
To Mr. Boeve, we leave a sling shot for Deer Hunting.
To Mr. Brewer, we leave "OLD SESAME."
To Mrs. Dawson, we bequeath a class of "Introverts."
To Mr. DeBoer, we do not leave you--you left us.
To Mr. Hunnes, we leave a fortune, so from now on you can travel to Paris in style.
To Miss Houtman, we leave a new car, so you won't use that as an alibi for being late.
To Mrs. Greenwald, we leave footstools to use in the study hall for people like Duane Doxtator.
To Miss Haines, we hate to leave you.
To Mrs. Martin, we leave a new batch of Seniors to rip up your magazines.
To Mr. Ruschman, we leave a new vocal cord for the one you wore out on the second team.
To Mrs. Sharp, we leave a new grindstone, so you can keep "Sharp."
To Miss Stace, we leave another class to borrow your typewriters.
To Mrs. Thelin, we leave Milton Berle's television contract; after the laugh you gave us.
To Mrs. Vaughn, we leave you--Goodbye.
To Mrs. Wade, we leave a home in Rockford so you will be closer to school.
To Mr. Witkowski, we leave a new pair of ice skates.
To Mr. Formsma, we leave the building problems that lie ahead.
To Mr. Fry, we leave a "Lie Detector" for absentees.
To Mrs. Sprik, we left you--six years ago.
To Mrs. Newlon, we leave in unknown places all the office equipment we borrowed and never returned.
To Nancy Bloomer, we leave nothing, for you have too much in your office already.
To Mrs. Lewis, we aren't going to leave unless you come with us.

CHAPTER III

I, Iva Jean Amick, leave my shy ways to Donna Mudget.
I, Dick Ball, leave my basketball career to Rusty Greenbauer, I won't be using it anyway.
I, Joyce Bigham, leave my pleasant ways to Carol Springvloed.
I, Carol Boerema, leave my carefree ways and ability to avoid a broken heart to Janice Varnagatas.
I, Ruth Bowers, leave my debating experiences to Bob Bunker so that he can be more convincing in his classes.
I, Doris Brown, leave my sweet voice to Bob Wolf.
I, Anne Marie Brozovich, leave my ability to get all A's to Dave Clay.
I, Lorraine Bullock, leave my soft voice and willing manners to nobody because what would I do without a voice.
I, Marion Burg, leave my methods for keeping quiet to Gordie Ihrig.
I, Terry Covert, leave my sports ability to Jackie Miller.
I, Don Cronkright, leave my technique to be late and still get there on time, to Bob Ver Sluis.
I, Phyllis Cross, leave my Government book to any Junior who wants it.
I, Norman Davis, leave my '37 Ford to whoever will buy it.
I, Jerry DeVos, leave my car for someone to push to school.
I, Jenny Dieterman, leave my notebook that I have used for the last five years to anyone that can use it.
I, Duane Doxtator, leave my talent to get back in class to all the rowdies of K. H. S.
I, Marilyn Garton, leave my flirtatious ways to Margaret Kuikstra.
I, Joyce Graham, leave my typing efficiency to Don Van't Hof.
I, George Grit, leave my way with women to Gordie Carpenter.
I, Morris Handlogten, leave by trickery.
I, Tom Hansel, leave my ability to run down people to Don Davison.
I, Phyllis Homrich, leave my sense of humor while selling tickets to Barbara Stedman.
I, David House, leave my motorcycle to nobody, because I need it.
I, John Kalas, leave my large vocabulary to Marvin Bisbing.
I, Dick Keller, leave my knack for taking spills on my motorcycle and live to Ronald Borrink.
I, Bill Kolarec, leave my sex appeal to Henry Romeyn.
I, David Kisner, leave my knack for keeping my locker clean to Ronald De Camp.
I, Ann Kruisenga, leave Phil to no one, as I want him for myself.
I, Joanne Kuikstra, leave my peroxide to anyone who is foolish enough to use it.
I, Jo Ann Loughner, leave my bright red hair to Janice Varnagatas.
I, Ron Leys, leave my attendance at the Senior dances to Beverly Bronkema.
I, Gloria Martinson, leave my hillbilly records to Ronald De Camp.
I, Rex McBride, leave my safe driving record to Carl Hickman.
I, Connie Miller, leave my ability to be quiet in study hall to Jack Ellinger.
I, Delano Miller, leave ----- yippey.
I, Dorcas Miller, leave my method of always trying to Bob St. Arnold.
I, Marion Miller, leave my thanks to Miss Stace for the patience she showed in my transcription class.
I, Eunice Neuman, leave my dainty feet to Emerson Myers.
I, Blanche Nichols, leave my freckles to Lois Taylor.
I, Lawrence Nichols, leave for the Navy.
I, Margie Payne, leave my bashful blush to Beverly Marquedant.
I, Bob Perkins, leave my long legs to Tom Finnie.
I, Don Phillips, leave my absent excuses to Norman Patterson.
I, Phyllis Poeder, leave my feminine voice to Ronald Baldwin.
I, Pat Prinz, leave my ability and charm in catching men to Margaret Davey.
I, Bob Schriemer, leave my secret formula for growing to the second team basketball squad.
I, LaVon Schuiling, do will my tact to get along with the teachers to David Clay.
I, Lloyd Seeley, leave my wise-cracks to Russel Crake.
I, Delores Smith, leave my sweet ways to Don Davison.
I, Roger Smits, leave my ability to go through the Senior year without having any accidents to all the car-drivers of the coming Senior Class.
I, Arline Steffes, leave my poor spelling typewriter to my brother Del.
I, Jim Stephens, leave my ability to hold down my left guard position for three years to Bill Davison.
I, Joyce Syswerda, leave and hope the girls let my Chuck alone.
I, Richard Thurber, leave my height to Bones.
I, Gerry Van Houten, leave my ability to blush a most red to Phil Westmaas.
I, Lorraine Verolme, leave my nickname "Weiner" to Pat Syswerda for my name will be Seeley.

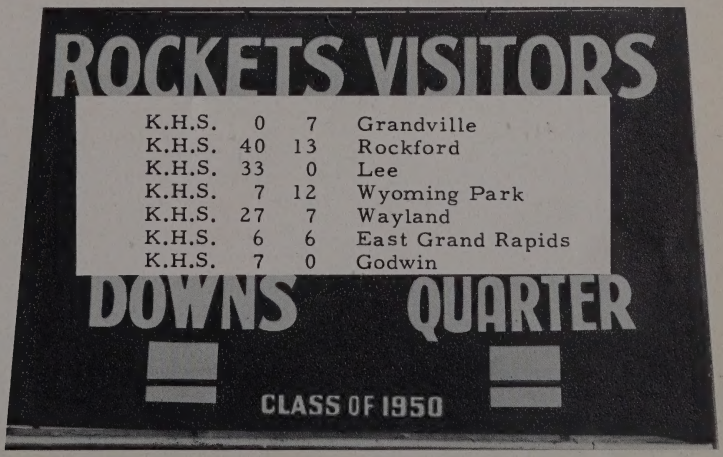
This was the first year that the Rockets did not play in a league, and they met some stiff competition. The coach, Mr. Brewer, was new to these boys and taught them the T-formation, which they used for the first time. Thirteen boys are Seniors who will not be with the team next year.

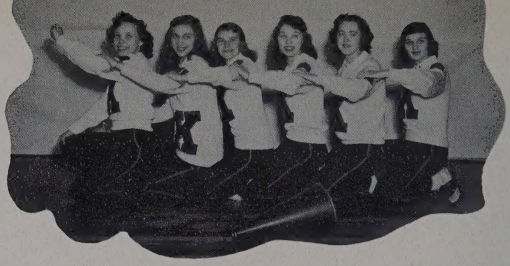
SECOND TEAM

ROW 1: M. VanDyke, B. Stephens, B. Ballard, D. MacDonald, J. Wilson, C. Curtiss, Coach Ruschmann. ROW 2: D. Larkin, D. Stricklin, J. Coon, R. Baldwin, D. Van't Hof, B. Noorman, N. Smith. ROW 3: E. Vannoller, A. Dieterman, R. Tanis, T. Horton, B. Davison, C. Leys.

The 1950 Second Team had a very successful season. Much credit for this success goes to the new second team coach Mr. Ruschmann. Though out weighed by the other teams, they still came up with a fine record. Several of the players seem to show great promise of being varsity material next year.



CHEERLEADERS



STANDING: B. Bronkema, Y. Fenske, L. Taylor, D. Miller, M. Payne, P. Barlow.
KNEELING: J. Clevenger, E. King, C. Phillips, S. Borrink.

VARSITY

ROW 1: T. Hansel, B. Voorhees, T. Covert, B. Schriemer, G. Carpenter, B. Ver Sluis, D. Cronkright. ROW 2: Mr. Brewer, G. Ihrig, R. Greenbauer. N. Patterson, R. Smits, D. Ball, T. Horton (Manager).

Kelloggsville's hard playing Rockets completed an average season in a burst of glory by taking the Class C District Championship. This is the first time that Kellogsville has ever held this title. A large part of the credit for this goes to Coach Brewer.

ROW 1: J. Coon, N. Smith, J. Wilson, D. Van't Hof, T. Larkin, B. Ballard, C. Ver Sluis. ROW 2: Mr. Ruschmann, D. MacDonald, C. Stricklin, D. Palmetier, J. Stewart, C. Curtiss, B. Stephens, T. Horton.

Mr. Ruschmann's hard playing Junior Rockets completed a successful season. Their win and loss record was only fair, but considering the players lack of height their acheivements were commendable.

Hurdles

Our track team had a very promising year. The old tracksters who had started the first of the year worked themselves up to good runners and fieldmen. This was the third year of track, and the team was undefeated in dual-meet competition. There were some new meets this year among which were the relays at Central Michigan College. Old competitors were Comstock Park, Coopersville, Byron Center, and Wyoming Park. The team had a triangular meet with Sparta and White Cloud, and they also made a good showing in the Regionals.

The K-Club and Mr. Boeve were instrumental in the presentation of the annual "All Sports Banquet. "Mr. Boeve provided the venison, and the K-Club provided the entertainment. The members sold paddle-pops at all basketball games, and they aided the Sports Club in the sale of raffle tickets for the television set and other prizes which were given away at the Kelloggsville Karavan.
